

TMDU's annual Summer Festival was held in the evening of July 18, 2019 at the TMDU Garden. The festival is intended to promote exchange among international and Japanese students of Tokyo Medical and Dental University and Juntendo University.

Festival activities included yo-yo fishing games, superbball scooping and halal yakisoba, and students found plenty of opportunities to enjoy a side of Japanese culture they don't often see. Several students even wore Yukata, which is a traditional Japanese summerwear.

The highlight of the festival was undoubtedly the watermelon splitting game, called "Suika-wari," in which blindfolded participants relied on the help of spectators to help them find the watermelon and split it open with a wooden stick.

We would like to express our sincere gratitude to Wadokai for their support of this event.

Yo-yo fishing games

Watermelon splitting game