

大学院特別講義

医歯学先端研究特論

Special Lecture of Advanced Medical and Dental Study

(生命理工学先端研究特論) (医歯理工学先端研究特論)

Establishment of preventive system to oral biofilm-related diseases

Streptococcus mutans is an oral bacterium that is the principal agent for development of biofilms. An inhibitor of biofilm development by S. mutans may be useful in oral care to prevent oral diseases. In this lecture, we would like to introduce new inhibitors and inhibiting systems to the oral biofilm formation.

Hidehiko Senpuku, DDS, PhD

Laboratory Chief

Laboratory of Oral Bacterial Infection

Department of Bacteriology

National Institute of Infectious Diseases

January 29th, 2014 15:00-

at Demonstration room

Building 7 Faculty of dentistry and animal research center 5F

保存・矯正示説室 7号館 5階

contact Dr.Otsuki otsuki.ope@tmd.ac.jp
Cariology and Operative Dentistry