

Raising Childcare Fee

The childcare fee at “Waku Waku Hoikuen” nursery will be raised starting from October 2016. We apologize in advance for any inconvenience this may cause.

1. Childcare fee increase background

The nursery is operated by a combination of user fees, subsidy from the Tokyo Labor Bureau, and university funds. From 2015, the subsidy will be reduced gradually to zero by 2021, thus shifting the burden on to the university going forward. However, given the university’s worsening budget situation, the board of executive directors, after discussions with nursery operations and management, have decided to increase the childcare fee in order to stabilize nursery operations.

2. Childcare fee from October 2016

- Basic childcare fee will be 80,000 yen (85,000 yen at the age of 0 (zero) from April 2017).
- Extended childcare fee will be 500 yen per 30 minutes, snack 200 yen at a time, supper 500 yen at a time, temporary childcare registration 2,000 yen per infant, temporary childcare 500 yen per 30 minutes, temporary extended childcare 500 yen per 30 minutes, lunch 500 yen, morning snack 200 yen, afternoon snack 200 yen.
- In the past the childcare fee was reduced by half for additional infants (in the case of a regular user of the service), but this rule will be abolished going forward.

3. Cost for Nursery Operation

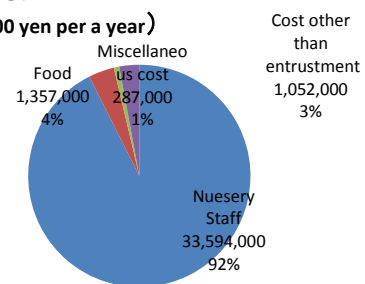

The cost of nursery operations, including nursery staff employment, food and facility, is round 36,290,000 yen per year (based on FY 2015). Sixty percent of the cost consists of revenue from childcare fee and a subsidy from the Tokyo Labor Bureau, and the remaining 14 million yen is shouldered by the university.
